CASE WILL BE TRIED HERE.

CODDARD'S MOTION FOR CHANGE OF VENUE OVERRULED.

Will Be Tried Next oMnday for the Murder of Fred J. Jackson-Mrs. Jackson Not Present at the Henring Yesterday.

Dr. J. D. Goddard will be tried in Jackson county for the murder of Fred J. Jackson and his trial will begin next Munday morning in the criminal court. Judge Wofford yesterday overruled Goddard's application for a change of venue made on the ground that there was such a prejudice against ilm in this county that he could not get a fair trial. As soon as the hearing of the evidence was concluded Judge Wofford an-nounced sharply that the motion was over-

"But, your honor," interposed Judge Gif-ford, one of Goddard's attorneys, "we want to argue the case."

no need of argument. Argument wouldn't thange my opinion," replied his honor, decisively.

"We want the record to show," said Judge Gifford, "that the motion for a change of venue was overruled, and that the court declined to hear argument."

"The record will show," announced the judge, "that the motion was overruled and excepted to by the defendant, that the defendant's counsel asked to be allowed to argue the case and that the court declined to hear argument for the reason that his mind was made up. That's what the record will show, and you can take all the exceptions you want to on that proposition."

As a matter of fact there was nothing under the sun which the ordinary citizen could see to argue. The various witnesses on each side swore that there was or was not any general prejudice against Goddard. On cross examination the most of the witnesses for the state and defense admitted that they hadn't heard the matter discussed for weeks. The witnesses for neither slde pretended to know what the general sentiment of the people was. The burden was on the defendant to show that prejudice existed to such an extent that Goddard could not have a fair trial in this county. This the defense signally failed to do. The evidence on both sides was exceedingly weak. Dr. Burchard was the only witness who claimed to have talked with very many persons. He said he had talked with 500 people and they all condemned Goddard.

Dr. Goddard was represented by J. W. Beebe, I. N. Watson and F. W. Gifford. He was neatly dressed in a gray business suit, and his linen had evidently just come from Jackson's laundry. Mrs. Jackson, the widow of the murdered man, and who is charged with complicity in the murder, was not present, though her attorney, Henry Smith, was an interested spectator.

ALL LITTLE ITALY OUT.

A Justice's Court Packed With Men Women, Children and

An odor of bananas, mingled with that of old rags, pervaded the hall leading from Justice Krueger's court room in the Long building yesterday afternoon. "Little Italy." almost to a man, had been transferred to a court of justice. The rooms were packed with pedders, men and women, while children of all ages and sizes and dressed in the most airy and filtry clothing huddled together with dogs in their arms. Margarita Cotora, of 402 East Fourth street, had had her neighbor. Margarita Amone, arrested on a charge of disturbing her peace. Joe Damico, the "king" of "Little Italy," appeared in the role of an interpreter.

Tattle Italy," appeared in the role of an interpreter.

During their testimony the witnesses made wild gesticulations with their arms to add emphasis to their words. Finally a negro who happened to be passing when the quarrel between the women was in mogress was put on the stand. The negro testified that he had seen the frosecuting witness throw her arms above harhead as if in the act of throwing a rock at the defendant. In arguing the case, Attorney Brady, for the state, said that the testimony of the negro that he thought from her actions the woman had thrown a rock was entirely incompetent.

"If your honor pleases, I might place a charge of assault against any of the witnesses who have appeared in this case," he said. They have thrown their arms above their heads as if in the act of assaulting they have in emphasizing their words."

Federal Prisoner Wanted in Colorado Stands Little Chance of Being Taken Back Just Now.

Postoffice Inspector Waterbury, of Denver, is in Kansus City. He came in yesterday morning from Springfield, where he caused the arrest of Oscar Dickens of Colorado, who is wanted there for postoffice robbery. Dickens is in iall at Springfield and Waterbury will this morning oak Judge Philips, of the federal court, for an order of removal to take the prisoner, to Colorado. It is possible he will not get it, as Judge Philips has in the past held to the rule that no order will be made except when the crime is inflamous or the man has been regularly indicted. Dickens has not been indicted, but is arrested on a commissioner's warrant.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

There has been much mystery concerning the plans and purposes of the new manage ment of the Auditorium for the coming sea chased the property from the National Bank of Commerce last spring he leased the theater to Messrs. Paxton & Burgess, managers of the Creighton and Boyd theaters at Omaha and of a house at Lincoln, Neb. Mr. Paxton has been here once since that time, and Mr. Burgess has spent several days in town, his last visit having been made on Tuesday. It has been impossible for anyone to get any particulars as to the attractions for the coming season, but the general assurance was reiterated that the high class attractions and the superior tone that attracted such favorable attention last season would be continued, and that some excellent bookings had been made. chased the property from the National and that some excellent bookings had been made.

As a result of Mr. Burgess' last call, however, it develops that the handsome East side theater is to be converted into a continuous performance theater, the basis of the departure to be a "parmanent" stock company, whose week'r parmanent" stock company, whose week'r parmanent" stock company, whose week'r parmanent with the curtain will not confidence that there will be performances every afternoon and evening, seven days in the week, and that the curtain will not come down from 1 p. m. until if p. m., so that go when you will you will always find "something going on." A low scale of prices will prevail in spite of the fact that one may remain for ten consecutive hours for one price of admission. The season, according to the present plans, will open October 18.

The Auditorium has had some pretty hard track it was feet that the contractive it was feet to be a parmanent.

coming to the present plans, will open October 18.

The Auditorium has a had some pretty hard rubs. It was for a long time swamped in Hitgation, has had a small regiment of different managers—a lew of them good and some of them bad—and had a term under Lester M. Crawford, in silent partnership with Messrs. Hudson & Judah, who tried to make it a popular price house, with Sunday openings, which undertaking met with distinguished failure. About the only thing that has not been tried is the continuous business, and the Omaha firm is about to experiment with that. It is said that similar schemes have succeeded in other cities.

The Herrmanns will have several new features in their performance at the Grand to-night. Instead of "The Artist's Dream" two new illusions will be given. One of them, "Elixir Vitae," was in the course of preparation by the elder Herrmann at the rime of his death and has been perfected by been and Mme. Herrmann. The other, "The Maid of the Moon," is said to be specially pretty and effective. There will be the usual matines to-day.

sters in front of The Journal office yesterday afternoon. The "prince of the black art." seeing a collection of newsboys on the corner, started the ball rolling by throwing a handful of pennies in their midst. In an instant the wildest excitement prevalled among the juveniles as they piled on top of each other to get the coins.
The little pile of struggling humanity
seemed to amuse the magician immensely,
and when the last penny had been captured
the boys for the first time recognized the familiar features and the coal black mustache and goatee of the famous wizard.
They gathered around him as files gather
about a can of syrup, for nothing possesses
such an intense fascination for the average newsboy as a Herrmann. The magician delighted the little fellows for five minutes, taking all sorts of curious things from chewing gum to diamond rings out of their ears, noses, hair and clothes, Quite a crowd gathered to watch the impromptu performance, and when the wizard started away the boys followed him down the street until he disappeared in his hotel.
